

Daily Work Reports Policy

Effective Date: June 1, 2026 | Version 1.0

Purpose

This policy establishes the requirement for daily documentation of client visits. Daily work reports support quality of care, communication with families, accurate billing, and protection of both clients and staff.

Who Must Complete Reports

Every Good Company staff member (including the owner) must complete a daily work report for every client visit. No exceptions are made based on visit length, services provided, or familiarity with the client.

When Reports Must Be Completed

Daily work reports must be completed on the same day as the visit, ideally before the staff member's workday ends. Reports completed days after a visit are considered late and may compromise accuracy and usefulness.

Required Information

Every daily work report must include:

- Client name
- Date of visit
- Arrival time
- Departure time
- Staff member name
- Services provided (description of activities)
- Client's general condition and mood
- Any concerns or observations (changes in health, mood, environment)
- Meals prepared or consumed
- Medication reminders provided (note: Good Company only provides verbal reminders, never administers)
- Errands run (with mileage if applicable)
- Transportation provided (destination, mileage, time)
- Any incidents or accidents
- Communications with family members

- Follow-up needed
- Staff signature/initials

Observation Notes

Observations should be objective and factual rather than judgmental. For example:

- Use "Client appeared tired and napped for 30 minutes" rather than "Client was lazy"
- Use "Bruise observed on left forearm; client states they bumped against doorframe" rather than "Suspicious bruise on arm"
- Use "Refrigerator contained expired milk and yogurt; both discarded" rather than "Refrigerator was disgusting"
- Use "Client ate approximately half of breakfast and 3 cups of water throughout visit" rather than "Client didn't eat much"

Changes in Client Status

Any of the following observations should be documented in detail and immediately communicated to the Good Company owner:

- Falls or near-falls
- Unexplained injuries (bruises, cuts, marks)
- Significant changes in mood, behavior, or cognition
- Significant changes in appetite, hydration, or weight
- Difficulty breathing, chest pain, or other concerning symptoms
- New or worsening pain
- Difficulty walking or maintaining balance
- Confusion, disorientation, or memory changes
- Concerning statements from the client
- Concerning observations in the home environment
- Changes in family dynamics that may affect the client

Confidentiality

Daily work reports contain confidential information about clients. Reports must be:

- Stored securely (digital reports password-protected, paper reports in locked file)
- Discussed only with authorized parties (the owner, the client, the family, or as required by law)
- Never shared on social media, with friends, other clients, or other third parties
- Retained according to the Records Retention Policy

Use of Reports

Daily work reports serve multiple purposes:

- Communication with the client's family

- Accurate billing for services rendered, in accordance with the Payment Policy
- Documentation of mileage and expenses for tax purposes
- Identification of patterns or changes in the client's condition
- Record of services in the event of a complaint or dispute
- Legal documentation in the event of an incident
- Quality improvement and service planning

Family Communication

Summaries of daily work reports may be shared with the client's designated family contact on a schedule agreed upon in advance (e.g., weekly summary email, after each visit, monthly). The specific format and frequency are determined during the intake process and documented in the client's file.

Records Retention

Daily work reports are retained for a minimum of 7 years from the date of service, in accordance with the Records Retention Policy. After that period, reports are securely destroyed using the methods described in that policy. Reports that relate to an active complaint, investigation, or litigation matter are retained until the matter is fully resolved, plus 7 additional years.

Policy Review

This policy is reviewed annually. All staff members are required to read and acknowledge this policy.
