

Client Rights Policy

Effective Date: June 1, 2026 | Version 1.0

Purpose

This policy affirms the rights of every Good Company client. Recognition and respect for client rights is foundational to the relationship between Good Company and the seniors and families it serves.

Right to Dignity and Respect

Every client has the right to:

- Be treated with kindness, courtesy, and respect at all times
- Be addressed by their preferred name and pronouns
- Be free from verbal, emotional, physical, or sexual abuse
- Have their cultural, religious, and personal preferences honored
- Have their lifestyle choices respected without judgment

Right to Privacy and Confidentiality

Every client has the right to:

- Privacy in their home and personal space
- Confidential handling of personal, medical, and financial information
- Have their personal information shared only with persons they authorize
- Discreet handling of any matters concerning their care
- Decline to discuss personal matters at any time
- Have records about them stored securely and retained only as described in the Records Retention Policy

Right to Make Decisions

Every client has the right to:

- Make decisions about their daily routine
- Choose what services they receive and when
- Refuse any service or activity at any time
- Be involved in planning their own care
- Have their preferences honored regarding meals, activities, and outings
- Designate a representative or family member to assist with decision-making

Right to Quality Service

Every client has the right to:

- Receive services from staff who are properly screened, trained, and supervised
- Be served consistently and reliably according to their schedule
- Receive services that meet the agreed-upon scope and quality
- Be informed in advance of any changes to schedule, staff, or service

Right to Voice Concerns

Every client has the right to:

- Voice concerns or complaints without fear of retaliation
- Receive a timely and respectful response to any concern
- Have complaints investigated and resolved fairly
- Be informed of the resolution of any complaint they have raised
- Contact outside authorities (such as Michigan Adult Protective Services) if they believe their rights have been violated

Right to Transparent Pricing and Fair Billing

Every client has the right to be treated fairly and transparently in all financial matters. As described in the Payment Policy, every client has the right to:

- Receive clear, written information about all service fees before services begin
- Be informed in advance of any changes to pricing
- Receive itemized invoices for all services provided
- Question or dispute any charge without fear of retaliation
- Cancel services without penalty according to the Termination of Care Policy
- Receive a full refund of any unused prepaid funds in the event of the client's passing, hospitalization that ends services, or when services are no longer appropriate
- Be free from pressure to tip; tipping is never expected or solicited
- Receive documentation of payments for tax or long-term care insurance purposes upon request

Right to Refuse or Terminate Service

Every client has the right to:

- Refuse any service or activity at any time
- Terminate services according to the Termination of Care Policy, with proper notice
- Be free from pressure to continue services they no longer want

Right to Safety

Every client has the right to:

- Be cared for by staff who have been background-checked and screened

- Receive services from bonded and insured caregivers
- Be free from any service practice that compromises their safety
- Have emergencies handled promptly and appropriately
- Be informed of safety-related changes in their care

Right to Access Their Records

Every client (or authorized representative) has the right to request copies of their own records held by Good Company. The process for requesting records is described in the Records Retention Policy. Good Company will respond to records requests within 14 business days.

Communication of Rights

A copy of this Client Rights Policy is provided to every client and family at the time of service initiation. The policy is also available upon request at any time. Any questions about client rights may be directed to the Good Company owner.

Policy Review

This policy is reviewed annually. All staff members are required to read and acknowledge this policy as a condition of providing services.
